ABSTRACT

Statistics and analyses of the 1979 opening fall enrollment in New Jersey colleges and universities are presented. The overall 1.4 percent increase in New Jersey is below the national average and below the previous year's statewide increase. However, this increase is greater than in New York or Connecticut. In two-year colleges the 5.7 percent growth is above the national averages, with public community colleges growing more than twice as fast as junior colleges. The part-time student population growth is below the national rate. Universities and other four-year colleges show a slight decline, contrasted with a small national increase. There are slightly more women enrolled in New Jersey than in the nation, proportionately, and more are in public than private colleges. Most are part-time students. First-time enrollment of women has increased; that of men has declined. Both summary and detailed statistical charts are included, with data given for individual institutions as well as institution types. The summary section includes some analysis. (MSE)

OPENING FALL ENROLLMENT IN N.J. COLLEGES AND UNIVERSITIES, FALL 1979[1]

Preliminary federal data indicate that total college and university enrollment in the U.S. increased by 2.4% in the Fall of 1979, as compared to a slight decline of -0.5% last year.[2] The 1.4% increase in New Jersey college enrollment is below the national increase and below the increase of 2.3% in New Jersey last year (Table 1). Enrollments in New Jersey colleges, however, increased at a greater rate than in New York State (0.9%) and Connecticut (0.9%). Data are not available at this time for other northeastern states.

[b] Public Universities in New Jersey are Rutgers and CMDNJ. Independent Universities are Princeton and Seton Hall.

[c] Edward Williams College and Assumption College for Sisters are the two-year independent colleges.

[d] Other 4-year Public Colleges in New Jersey are the State Colleges, NJIT, and Edison College.

The two-year colleges in New Jersey experienced an enrollment growth of 5.7%, which is higher than the national increase of 4.3%. The increase in full-time enrollment at New Jersey's community colleges (7.8%) was dramatically above the average national increase for public two-year colleges (3.1%), while the increase in part-time enrollment (4.1%) was slightly below the national average increase (5.2%). Universities (-0.4%) and other four-year colleges (-0.7%) in New Jersey experienced an enrollment decline which contrasted with the national increase (+1.4%).

WOMEN AND MEN

Nationally, the enrollment of women increased from 50% to 51% of total enrollment,[3] while in New Jersey the enrollment of women increased from 52% to 53% of total enrollment (Table 2). The public colleges enrolled a greater percentage of women (55%) than the independent colleges (47%). As is the case nationally, a larger percentage of women were enrolled part-time (57%) than full-time (50%).

First-time freshman enrollment of women increased, while freshman enrollment of men declined. Pre-baccalaureate enrollment of women also increased, while pre-baccalaureate enrollment of men decreased (Table 3).

The growing enrollment of women accounts for the overall growth in pre-baccalaureate enrollment at New Jersey colleges and universities and the increase in total college enrollments between 1978 and 1979. In contrast to pre-baccalaureate enrollment, post-baccalaureate enrollment of both men and women declined.[4]

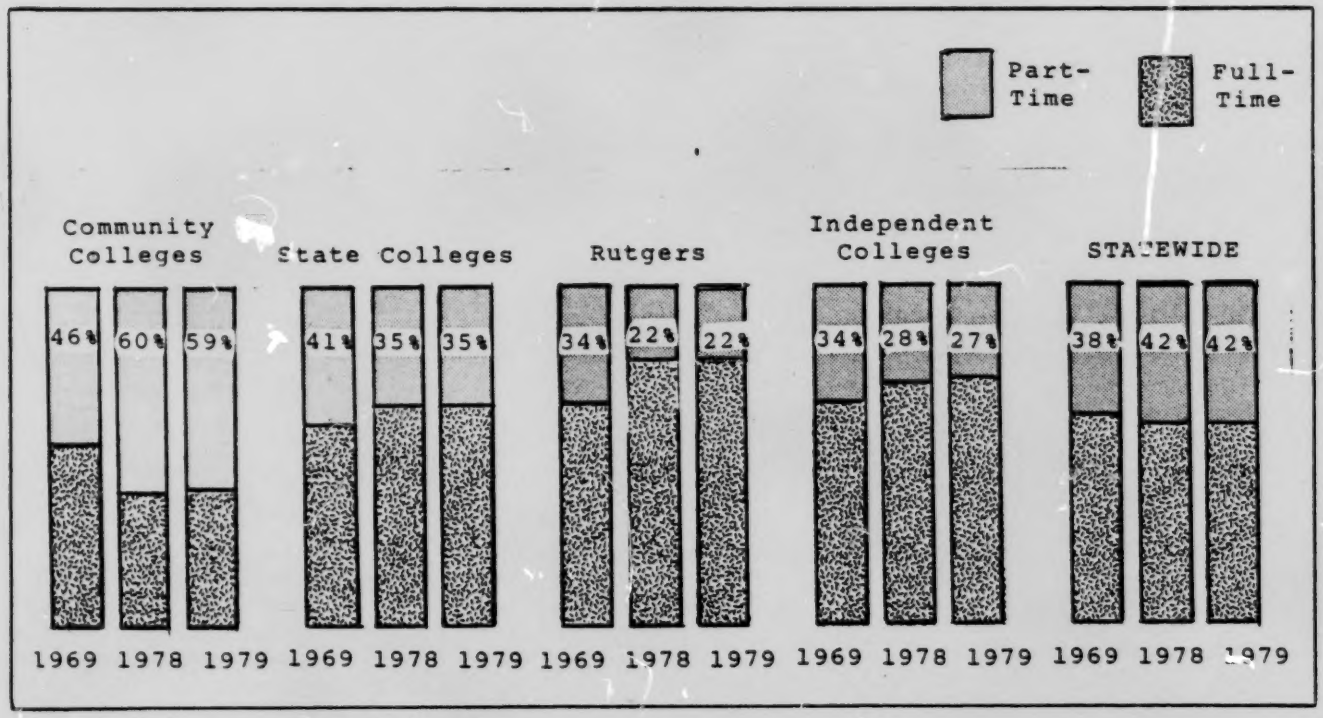
PART-TIME AND FULL-TIME

Part-time enrollment remained constant as a percentage of total pre-baccalaureate enrollment between 1978 and 1979. This stability contrasts with the increasing proportion of part-time enrollment evidenced over the last ten years; part-time enrollment in 1969 was 38% of total enrollment, as compared to 42% in 1979.[5] The growth in the portion of part-time enrollment is attributable to the dramatic growth in part-time enrollment in the community colleges (from 46% in 1968 to 59% in 1979). The proportion of part-time enrollment in all other sectors declined between 1969 and 1979 (Figure 1).

Figure 1

Proportion of Part-Time Pre-Baccalaureate Enrollment in N.J. Colleges 1969, 1978 and 1979[a]



[a] D.H.E. Research Note 78-3.

Full-time post-baccalaureate (graduate and first-professional) enrollment increased 3.2% between 1978 and 1979, continuing a modest growth trend beginning in 1976. Part-time graduate and first-professional enrollment, however, decreased 4.8% between 1978 and 1979. Since approximately 75% of all post-baccalaureate enrollments are part-time students, the drop in part-time enrollment resulted in a 2.8% decline in total graduate and first-professional enrollment (Table 4).

ENROLLMENT OVERVIEW

Pre-baccalaureate enrollment in New Jersey colleges has increased by 65% over the last decade (Fall 1969 to Fall 1979). All public sectors experienced enrollment growth: the community colleges increased by 174.5%, the state colleges by 58.9%, Rutgers by 59.3%. Independent college enrollment, however, declined by 10.6% (Table 5).

[a] D.H.E. Research Note 78-3.

Part-time pre-baccalaureate enrollment has been increasing slightly in recent years (Figure 2), while full-time enrollment has been stable (Figure 3). Part-time enrollment will continue to increase, while full-time enrollment will begin to decline. A decline in total pre-baccalaureate enrollment is projected to begin in the Fall of 1982.[6]

The enrollment pattern of the next decade primarily will reflect the anticipated decline in the number of high school graduates. While the number of New Jersey high school graduates and SAT takers have been declining since 1976, pre-baccalaureate enrollment has continued to increase. This increase has not resulted from increased enrollment at the freshman level, as freshman enrollment has been nearly constant at slightly more than 45,000 students since Fall 1975. Rather, the increase is attributable to students who were returning to college after having "stopped out", as well as to students transferring to a college in New Jersey from an out-of-state college (Table 6).

[c] NCES HEGIS Form #2300-2.3, "Opening Fall Enrollment".

[d] D.H.E. Research Note 78-3.

From the limited data available, it appears that transfers from out-of-state colleges, the return of "stop-outs", and the enrollment of students one or more years after graduation from high school will contribute to a slight growth of New Jersey college enrollments in the immediate future. The decline in the number of high school graduates eventually will have an impact on the number of first-time freshmen and the long-term trend for the 1980's clearly will be one of decline.

FINAL N.J. OPENING FALL ENROLLMENT REPORT, 1979

This publication presents data concerning enrollment in New Jersey colleges and universities. The tables are intended primarily to be factual rather than interpretive, and hopefully will provide pertinent information to members of the higher education community, as well as the general public concerning most of the subjects which recur in the discussions among institutions and the Board of Higher Education.

The data contained herein have been compiled by the staff of the Department of Higher Education's Office of Planning and Research from NCES HEGIS Form #2300-2.3 (Opening Fall Enrollment Report) for 1978 and 1979 and from NJ HEGIS Form #20577 (Opening Fall Enrollment Report) for 1977. These HEGIS surveys, which contain fall semester enrollment statistics, are submitted to the Department annually by all licensed colleges and universities in the state.

The tables represent digests of considerably more detailed enrollment data available in the Office of Planning and Research. Limited additional copies are available from:
